Encourage your child to push through the learning curve—it will get easier!

Encourage your child to beat their target due dates whenever possible.

Questions or Concerns: Contact the school (if applicable) and/or online instructor.

In Support of Your Child in Their Online Course

Expect a learning curve during the first few weeks. Online learning may be new to them (and you). They will get into ‘the zone’ as they continue to work in their online course. Transitioning to online education is a challenging new adventure. Encourage your child to engage and learn by creating a schedule that works for them, working consistently in their course, and reaching out to their online instructor as needed.

Your child’s online instructor supports them along the way by:

- Answering questions related to the subject or course
- Grading their work
- Encouraging them towards successful completion

Tips

Your child’s online instructor will respond to their questions within 24 hours and grade their work within 48 hours of submission (not counting weekends).

Encourage your child to communicate without delay if they have questions or encounter an issue. This will help avoid frustration and delays.

Help teach time management strategies to your child. They will have target due dates for assignments. They can plan to work ahead without penalty. They also have a two-week grace period to turn work in late without penalty. Help them plan around holidays and breaks.

Help with accountability by taking appropriate action as you review weekly grade and progress updates or login to check grades.

Be an advocate. Contact your child’s school and/or online instructor as needed.
